

Biology

Biology, life science, and related courses at Lehigh University are offered in a variety of settings that reflect the various levels of organization in life science and different orientations relating to areas of application. The College of Arts and Sciences offers degree programs in Neuroscience, Biochemistry, Biology, Earth and Environmental Science, and Cellular and Molecular Biology. The P. C. Rossin College of Engineering and Applied Science offers a degree program in Bioengineering. Refer to the catalog entries below for complete descriptions.

Major and Minor Programs	Catalog Entry
Neuroscience (BA or BS)	Biological Sciences
Biochemistry	Biochemistry (BS only)
Bioengineering (BS only)	Bioengineering
Biology (BA or BS)	Biological Sciences
Earth and Environmental Science	Earth and Environmental Sciences
Cellular and Molecular Biology (BA or BS)	Biological Sciences

Courses related to life science interest can be found under the catalog entries above as well as in other departments, including Chemical Engineering, Chemistry, Mathematics, Physics, Psychology, and Sociology and Anthropology