

Theatre

To study theatre is to examine its many internal disciplines. Acting and directing combine with design, technical theatre, dramatic literature, and theatre history to form the body of our art. Students may pursue general theatre studies or focus on particular areas such as performance, design or history, and literature. They may major in theatre, minor in theatre, or participate strictly in our production program. Students may even complete a minor in theatre from outside the College of Arts and Sciences.

The bachelor of Arts degree in Theatre is granted after at least 48 credit hours of study. Because we believe that undergraduate theatre education should be broad-based with an emphasis on diversity of experience, students are encouraged to take a variety of courses outside the major. Many students complete double majors. Those with the talents and aspirations for a career in theatre have gone to graduate schools offering intense, pre-professional training. Other majors who have not pursued a theatrical career have gone from our program directly into careers in business, social services, and sales. Theatre study is an excellent preparation for vocations in which self-presentation is important, such as law. The problem-solving, analytical, and interpersonal skills gained from this discipline are applicable across a wide range of careers. An understanding and appreciation of the complex art of the theatre will enrich a lifetime.

The department's active production program is curricular and promotes collaborative projects involving students, faculty (<https://theatre.cas.lehigh.edu/content/faculty/>), staff, and guest artists. Our large performance facility is the Diamond Theater (<https://theatre.cas.lehigh.edu/content/diamond-theater/>), a 300-seat thrust theater housed in the Zoellner Arts Center. The core of our work in this space is dedicated to productions featuring primarily student actors directed by faculty or guest artists. When possible, a highly qualified student may direct or design in this space. In addition to our own productions, we regularly invite outside professional performers and ensembles to work with us and perform. We also operate a lab theater (Fowler Black Box Theater) for student and faculty experimentation. The availability of valuable hands-on experience and the very close working relationships developed between students and faculty uniquely characterize the Department of Theatre. Performance and administrative internships are available to qualified students with guidance from a faculty mentor.

Students interested in designing a major or minor in theatre should consult with the department chairperson. Experienced theatre students with questions regarding accurate placement in any theatre course should, likewise, consult with the chairperson.

Lehigh University is an accredited institution by the National Association of Schools of Theatre.

THEATRE MAJOR

Through the selection of appropriate courses (<https://catalog.lehigh.edu/courselisting/thtr/>), students may concentrate their major in one of these areas:

- Acting/Directing
- Design/Technical Theatre
- Theatre History/Dramatic Literature
- General Theatre Studies

The Theatre major and minor are designed around the core pedagogical pillars in contemporary theatre education: Analyzing and Interpreting; Embodying, Envisioning, and Creating; Making and Presenting; and Exploring and Investigating. This prepares students to be Future Makers where creativity and interdisciplinary thinking are essential. Our courses encourage students to think across traditional boundaries and gain experience in diverse aspects of the field through critical analysis, problem-solving, and technical production to make them competitive in many diverse industries.

The major in Theatre consists of 38 hours distributed as follows:

DEPARTMENTAL HONORS

The exceptional student may elect to pursue departmental honors in the senior year. This student must have a GPA of 3.3 in all theatre courses presented for the major. No later than the fall of the senior year the student, with faculty supervision, elects a special project in a particular area of theatre. This may take the form of preparing to direct a play, researching a role to be performed, preparing a design presentation, or researching in an area of theatre scholarship in preparation for the writing of a substantial report. In the next semester, usually the spring of the senior year, the report or project would be executed. The student would enroll in two, four-credit independent study courses, one each senior semester.

THE ACTING SEQUENCE

Students with little or no prior acting experience should elect THTR 011, Introduction to Acting, as their first course. Students with some prior acting experience should consult with the department chairperson for accurate placement and waiver of the THTR 011 prerequisite.
